

Gallery: A duct tape prom

MARCH 15, 2009

STORY HIGHLIGHTS

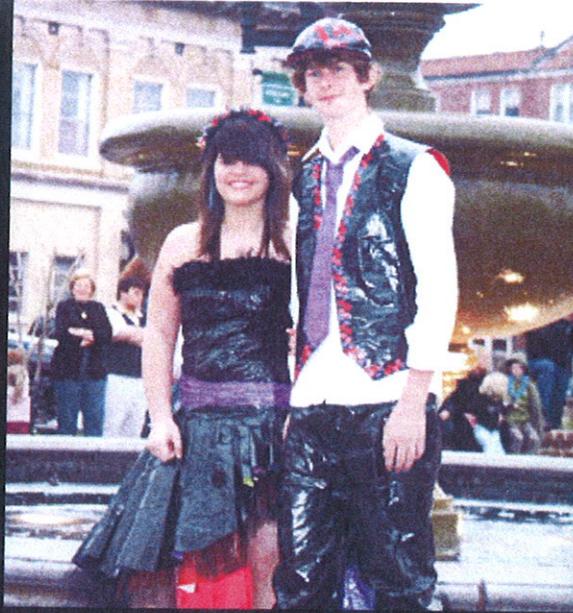

- Swainsboro High School students in Georgia take part in the "Stuck at Prom" contest
- Promgoers create outfits and accessories almost entirely out of duct tape
- Winners of the nationwide contest earn up to $3,000 in scholarship money
- The school says 80 students took part this year, up from just 25 last year

A duct tape prom - Photo 1 of 12

HIDE CAPTIONS

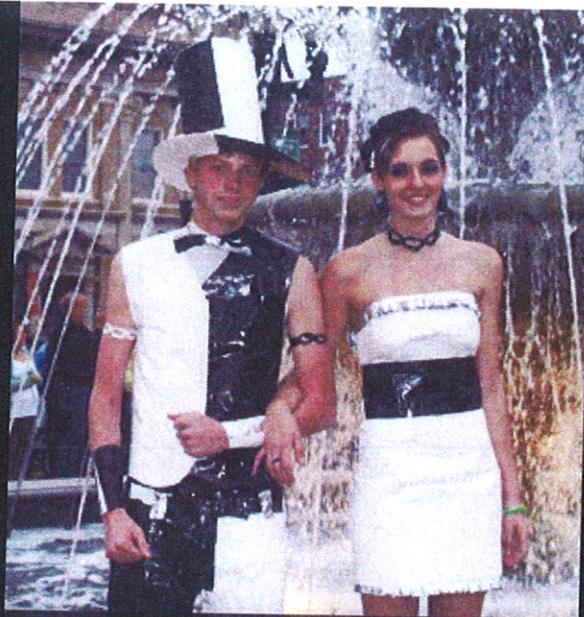

Students at Georgia's Swainsboro High School participate in the "Stuck at Prom" scholarship contest, sponsored by Duck brand duct tape. Swainsboro High School

A duct tape prom - Photo 2 of 12

Bonnie Hall, elected student spokesperson for Swainsboro High, wears a brightly colored prom outfit. Swainsboro High School

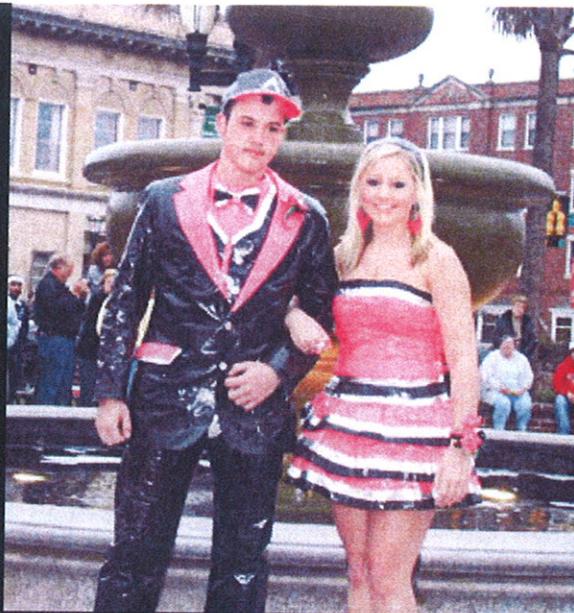

HIDE CAPTIONS

A duct tape prom - Photo 3 of 12

In its ninth year, the "Stuck at Prom" scholarship contest awards $3,000 to the winning couple, as well as $3,000 to the host school. Swainsboro High School

HIDE CAPTIONS

A duct tape prom - Photo 4 of 12

Students across the country and parts of Canada are encouraged to participate, with the winners announced in July.
Swainsboro High School

HIDE CAPTIONS

A duct tape prom - Photo 5 of 12

Second place winners take home $2,000 and earn their schools the same. Swainsboro High School

HIDE CAPTIONS 